Description

The compelling new novel from Susan Lewis, set in London and the Peak District, tells the story of a vulnerable teenager whose troubled relationship with her mother is tested further when a man her mother thought she could trust betrays them both in the worst possible way.

Insightful reviews

MissTee: I wanted to like this book but, i just couldn't. I couldn't connect with the characters, and the plot was predictable. As soon as Alan was introduced, i knew what was going to happen which lead me to skipping pages to see if i was right, and i was.

The Cats Mother: This was from book club and sat on the pile for ages, as it sounded a bit blah, but I needed a couple of books that I wouldn't risk getting engrossed in while away on holiday as I didn't want to be anti-social. It wasn't bad, as it turns out, even if some of the characters were quite annoying.

Susannah is a single mother in her late 30s, whose acting career was derailed by getting pregnant and whose husband ended up in jail for drug offences. She works multiple jobs to keep her bratty teenage daughter Neve at private school and keeping up with her posh friends' shopping trips, and has reached a low point when her daughter finds her ex-boyfriend Alan online and sets them up to meet again. They hurtle back into a relationship which seems to be the answer to all her problems, especially when she lands the lead role in a new TV series. Alan is however not the perfect gentleman he appears to be, and takes advantage of Neve's initial crush on the worst way.

I liked Patsy, the best friend, but thought Susannah was a complete wimp who brought most of her troubles on herself and blithely ignores the warning signs of what's going on because she's busy trying to make everyone like her.

I agree with other reviewers that the front cover is highly misleading, with a picture of a girl of about 8, while Neve is a mature 14, and while that in no way excuses Alan's behaviour, the "horror" referred to in the blurb is not as sinister as is implied.

Sue: ok

Kirstyn-maree: This e-book is compelling and entertaining, concerning topics similar to danger, romance, secret and a bit of tragedy. a bit heavier than what I often learn yet might suggest to any of my friends.

Joan: Too lengthy

Helen: Long!
