Description

Reginald Hill brings us a brilliant new Dalziel and Pascoe novel, featuring a chilling Mid-Yorkshire mystery.

Like father like son...

But heredity seems to have gone a gene too far when Pal Maciver's suicide in a locked room exactly mirrors that of his father ten years earlier.

In each case accusing fingers point towards Pal's stepmother, the beautiful enigmatic Kay Kafka. But she turns out to have a formidable champion, Mid-Yorkshire's own super-heavyweight, Detective Superintendent Andrew Dalziel.

DCI Peter Pascoe, nominally in charge of the investigation, finds he is constantly body-checked by his superior as he tries to disentangle the complex relationships of the Maciver family.

At first these inquiries seem local and domestic. What really happened between Pal and his stepmother? And how has key witness and exotic hooker Dolores, Our Lady of Pain, contrived to disappear from the face of Mid-Yorkshire?

Gradually, however, it becomes clear that the fall-out from Pal's suicide spreads far beyond Yorkshire. To London, to America. Even to Iraq. But the emotional epicentre is firmly placed in mid-Yorkshire where Pascoe comes to learn that for some people the heart too is a locked room, and in there it is always midnight.

Insightful reviews

Jill Hutchinson: Another in the Dalziel/Pascoe series. A man commits suicide and ten years later his son does the same.....or does he? The guys are on the case and it is soon discovered that Dalziel has a relationship with the widow of the dead father who is the step-mother of the son. And there are many other family secrets that are about to come to light which may change the complexion of the investigation. This is a complex story and sometimes stretches credibility.....but still a pretty good read from a darn good author.

Don: Reginald Hill is the cream of the crop among British mystery writers as far as I'm concerned. This is one of his more recent efforts featuring the Mid Yorkshire police time of Fat Andy Dalziel and Peter Pascoe. The surrounding individuals are neither perfect nor uninteresting. They grab my attention because they are people I would be glad to know. There is little in the tea cozy vein in Hill's books. They are gritty and witty. A combination that keeps me coming back for more.

Viktoria: Always fun to read a Dalziel and Pascoe Novel!

Molly: attention-grabbing and a piece complex - fingers offers and our bodies in Afghanistan bookend (to what end?) the crucial tale of a murder/suicide in an eccentric family. detectives - British and the dialect is now and then demanding - are the most characters within the series. They a lot concerned with the family members - ask yourself how that works in different volumes within the series? i'll no longer try and locate out.

Sandra: I loved this good sufficient to need to learn one other via this author, prior to writing him off. the tale is a bit complicated to start with, and on the end, there are nonetheless many questions about "who did it", and because I often like issues to be tied up extra well this publication gave me pause; however, the manager Inspector is a gorgeous fascinating personality and that i will learn one of many prior mysteries prior to passing ultimate judgement.

Susan Olivo: Love those Dalziel and Pascoe books.
