The narrator who crashes in the desert as the author, Saint-Exupéry once did, believes that the grown-ups, in his view, can't really see past the surface of things. And miraculously he meets a tiny boy in the desert wandering alone, referred as The Little Prince who shares the same perspective. Together they dissect the very human nature which is enough I believe, to shake the readers who are all too wrapped up in their own affairs and make them to contemplate on their priorities.

"It is such a secret place, the land of tears."

The little prince lives in a very small place, Asteroid B-612. He has 3 volcanoes to clean & a breathtaking sunset to watch everyday. He has a flower that is completely unique in his world & he loves her dearly. But the flower's vanity hurt him deeply which led the prince to set off to a new journey with a scarred heart to the unseen. And as he travels other planets, he finds each one inhabited by an odd, unreasonable man, until the prince comes to Earth where he learns the importance of bonds that we make and the stories we tell ourselves to live on. And as the pages turn, an unforgettable tale of affection, friendship and the loss of innocence unfolds itself slowly.

"It is only with the heart that one can see rightly; what is essential is invisible to the eye."

Who is to tell a child that in stars dead do not linger? Who is to tell a child that he does not know what he thinks he does? We live in a shell. Only when you pierce through that shell that we put proudly on, you will know the truth. Because only then the heart will have eyes and the heart will see. Because only then a mediocre poem of a hard working poet or a sunk ship of dead bodies, will be cared for.

Because what matters most is always bigger than us !

This is not a children's book clearly. The flower represents the author's Salvadoran wife whom he cheated on several times, but yet could not leave or forget. Because in other flowers, he found merely emptiness, but in her he smelled of love and dedication that he solely owned. The grasping baobab trees represented Nazism attempting to destroy the planet. The little prince is widely believed to be the author's own self.

"There is a flower. And I think that she has tamed me"

In each heart, lives a bunch of people who have loved us and whom we have loved. Through storm and sunshine, they will choose us again and again like they have before and we will choose them back. Because they are the ones we call our own, because they are the ones who have tamed us.

And I guess, The Little Prince has tamed me as well.
